Although the creator of Poor Richard's Almanack never saw Stott Hall or argued over a literary point in the "Key," it is obvious that a namesake in the form of a liberal arts college is certainly an apropos one for a man whose very nature embodied the intelligence and ceaseless curiosity characteristic of truly educated men. Scholar, diplomat, scientist, democrat, Franklin stressed the importance of education befitting that of a liberal arts college when he said, "Reading makes a full man—meditation a profound man—discourse a clear man."

In Benjamin Franklin's first Almanack which appeared in 1732 under the name of Richard Saunders, all the spaces that occurred between the days of the calendar were marked with proverbial phrases which, for the most part, inculcated industry and frugality. These characteristics, essential in the life of Ben Franklin's virtuous man, are equally essential in the life of the successful college student who employs them in every phase of his college career.

A prize-winning sorority-fraternity float, a successful rush week, the establishment of strong friendships and other collegiate activities found both within and outside the walls of the classroom must depend on hard work and the ability to budget time and energy in order to do them proper justice. Franklin certainly would have frowned upon the student who practices procrastination. At least Poor Richard made the point quite clear when he said "One today is worth two tomorrows."

Instruction and adages may help to correct weakness in incentive but the real strength of any college lies in the amount of student and faculty interest generated by spontaneous participation in class work and enthusiasm for campus activities and the successes and joys of fellow students. The personal touch added by an interested student or faculty member can make that painful "first week" easier for the frightened frosh and may help to create that unexplainable feeling called school spirit.

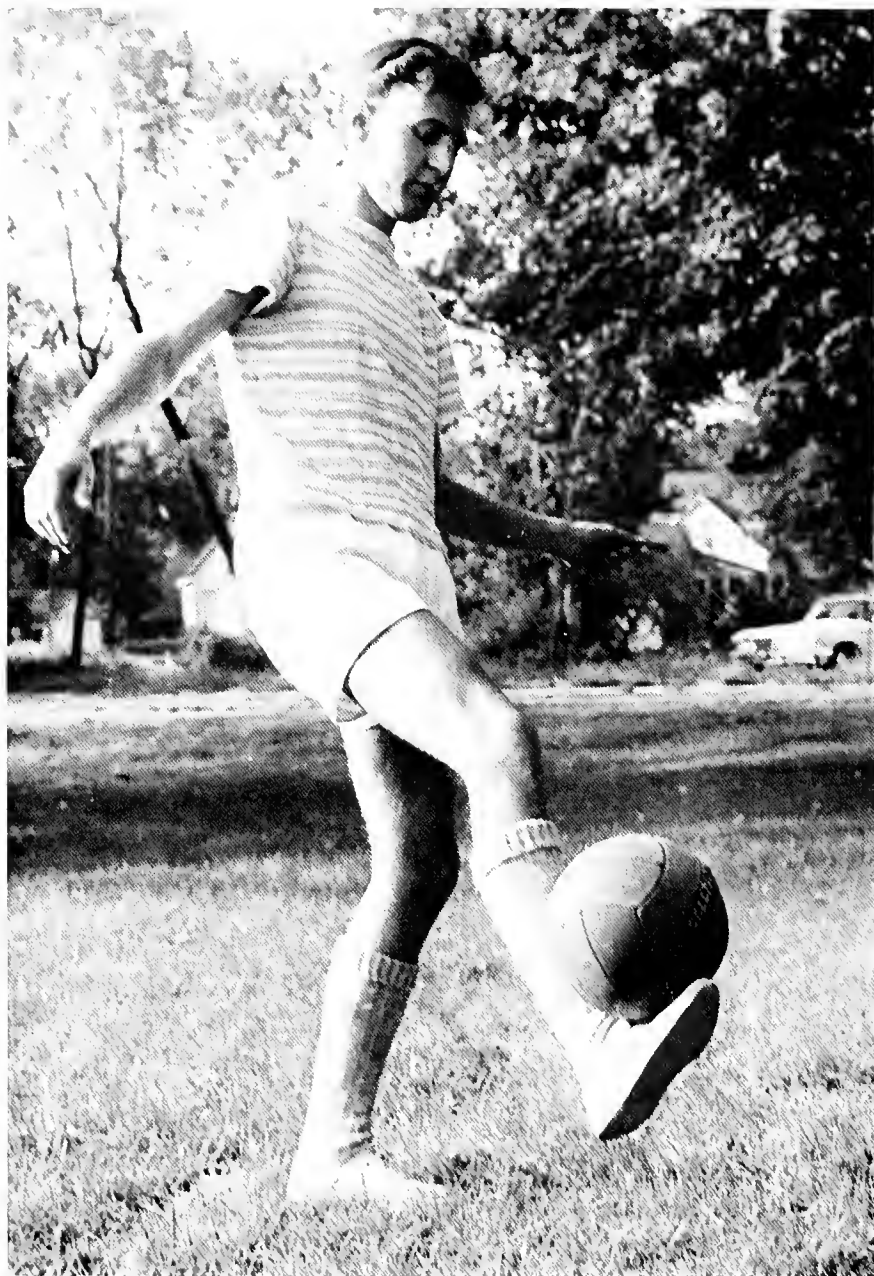

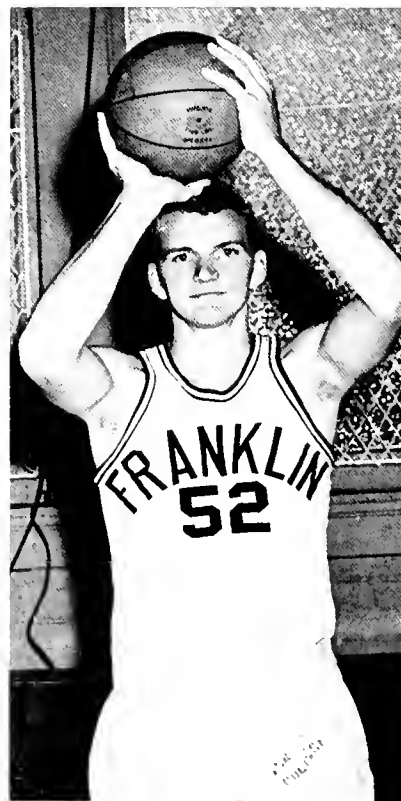

College athletic events are a highlight of the school year because it is in this area of collegiate life that the student can demonstrate his loyalty to the school and to participating friends by attending games and pep rallies. Enthusiastic votes of confidence in the form of pep chants, jaunty band rhythms, and cheers send a team on to good sportsmanship, energetic play, and, hopefully, victory. Pretty cheerleaders, a loyal crowd, an encouraging coach, and a well-balanced team make sports a vital and exciting part of college life.

A quiet time with a favorite date or a highly spirited tug o' war make study breaks an essential part of every student's day. Activities vary with the individuality of the person but they are alike in the relaxation and pleasure they afford. Preparation for a college theater presentation can give just as much satisfaction as a successful sorority rush or the opening of a "hoped for" bud. A picnic with friends or a bullseye in archery class can, at times, compensate for a disappointing grade or a generally dreary day. Franklin, the man of many moods and talents, exemplified in his life the idea of the well-rounded person. This parallel can, of course, be seen in the variety of required courses offered in the liberal studies program. A well-rounded person must have a well-rounded knowledge of the world around him.

In Franklin's Autobiography written to his oldest son, William Temple, in the form of a letter, he stated that the next thing most like living one's life over again seems to be a recollection of that life. The recollection can be made durable by putting it down in writing. The Franklin College Almanack is an autobiography in pictures. Happiness in the form of a queenly crown, the soft fur of a kitten, a Laurel link, a basketball uniform, lasting friendships, or the responsibility of newspaper editor, and the many other college activities is captured in its pages and brings to the mind of the reader that often profound, often giddy learning experience known as college.

Activities

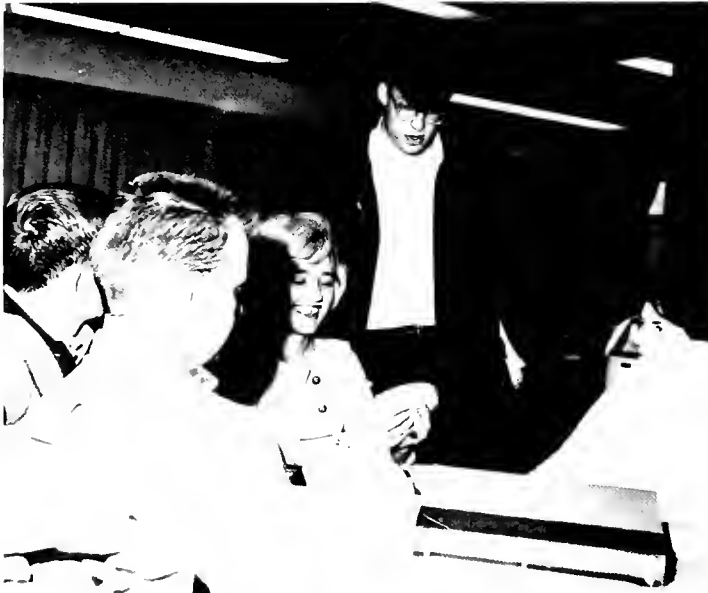

September Brings Students To Campus

The whirl of college life begins at a mad pace in September when students old and new once again bring the college to life in the form of the traditional activities of registration, sorority-fraternity rush, "Key" dates, and classroom "hunts." The newness of classes and the excitement of seeing old cronies and making new friends and acquaintances make the first few weeks of school a special phase of college life. The challenge of new and stimulating courses may inspire a closer reading of Walden or a fresh look at a worn major.

Mary Beth MacNab wears a welcoming smile as she greets new students.

Any free moments during Orientation Week are quickly passed in a game of bridge.

Students gather in the Key to read the Franklin's first edition of the year.

Students hurry from class to class amid the usual confusion of forgotten room numbers and unfamiliar buildings.

The first week of classes goes by quickly as students familiarize themselves with new texts and new teaching procedures.

The registration line in Elsev Hall is a "must" as students become fully matriculated.

Pre-school Rush Week ends with the pledging of freshman women. Pi Phi Mike Maddock welcomes new pledge Nicky Kolisch.

Suzanne Yeager gets her room assignment from Miss Laidlaw as others wait their turn.

Pledging day means picnics, parades and parties. The Tri Deltas entertain their new members with an outdoor luncheon.

Crowning, Floats Spark Homecoming

A fall highlight on the campus social calendar combines a crisp autumn day, the excitement of a football game, colorful floats, and the crowning of a lovely queen to create that special college tradition, Homecoming. Old acquaintances and friends are certainly not forgotten as visiting alums relive the "good ole'" days. Members of Pi Beta Phi were extremely proud in this year's festivities when sister, Sharon Carroll, was named Homecoming queen and when the Pi Phi-Phi Delt float endeavor won first prize. The Homecoming game was played with the Wabash College Giants.

Chosen by the vote of all men on campus, Sharon Carroll reigns over the Homecoming game, parade and dance.

The winning float was built by Pi Beta Phi and Phi Delta Theta. Wabash College is represented as falling as did the Biblical giant, Goliath.

A cold Hurricane Creek is the only reward for the Freshmen as they are defeated in the traditional Tug of War by the Sophomores.

Queen Sharon Carroll, Pi Beta Phi, leads the Homecoming parade.

All smiles after receiving the trophy for the best float are Mary Mulholland, Rusty Rathbun and Carolyn Braman.

Zeta; Jill Lohner, Zeta Tau Alpha; Mary June Tipton, Unaffiliated Women; Sharon Powell, Independent Women, and Sharon Carroll, Pi Beta Phi.

A nativity scene in front of the Lambda Chi Alpha house is a welcome and beautiful sight for the campus and the community.

Members of the college community assemble in front of the court house for Christmas Caroling.

The Chorale, a division of the Franklin College Concert Choir, presents a musical program to the college and community at an evening Christmas convocation. An all-campus Christmas caroling party highlighted the occasion.

Christmas brings gay decorations to the dorm. Delta Zetas Judy Conquest and Helen Davis stop in front of their door, complete with holiday trimmings.

Decorated Campus Welcomes Christmas

The joy and spirit of the blessed holiday Christmas are certainly not wasted on the Franklin campus. Sorority doors are gaily decorated with brightly colored paper and shiny tinsel. Personal rooms are adorned with individualized decorations. Sorority and fraternity philanthropic projects often materialize at this time when parties are held for needy children and mittens are purchased for cold little hands. The presentation of Handel's Messiah by the combined efforts of the college-community choir and orchestra is a favorite and meaningful tradition of the college.

Townpeople and the campus community practice tirelessly for the annual presentation of the Messiah.

Appearing with the Iberian Dance Theater is Laura Toledo who performs a rendition of flamenco dances.

David Bernard, flamenco guitarist, appears on campus as part of the college convocation series.

Leavenworth, Stephanie Pence, John Chapman, Linda Fletcher, Bob Raben, Rich Hatch and Dick Fitch.

Appearing in "Year's Ago", David Forman as Mr. Gordon becomes enraged with Mrs. Gordon (Linda Fletcher) at the thought of his daughter going on stage.

Linda Fletcher mends the dress of her theater-aspiring daughter, Katherine Katt, while Dave Forman looks on.

The Lettermen Concert presented in March included songs from Broadway hits as well as current favorites.

Culture, Talent Broaden Our Scope

Entertainment and culture come to the campus in varied forms. The year's convocations ranged from the controversial philosophy of Father Malcolm Boyd, Episcopal priest, to the haunting strains of flamenco guitar music. Students marveled at the limber antics of a pantomime artist and listened intently to the views of Zelma George, Danforth visiting lecturer from the Association of American Colleges. The student activity series, sponsored by the Student Council, featured the rock n' roll singing group, Jay and the Americans, and the Ivy League crooners, The Lettermen. The Franklin Theater group presented "The Lady's Not For Burning," "Years Ago," and George Bernard Shaw's "Candida."

Candidates for Kee-Ko-Nut Queen are freshmen Elaine Headley, Zeta Tau Alpha; Patricia Gray, Delta Zeta; Penny Heeter, Independent Women; Janice Bursie, Delta Delta Delta; and Nicky Kolisch, Pi Beta Phi.

Nancy Gerber, Delta Delta Delta, crowns Janice queen of the the dance sponsored by Blue Key, men's honorary.

Queens Crowned At Prom, Kee-Ko-Nut

The Junior Prom, sponsored by the junior class, and the Kee-Ko-Nut, sponsored by Blue Key are two college formal traditions. Each dance is enhanced by the selection of a queen who reigns over the festivities. The freshman queen of the Kee-Ko-Nut taps men for membership in Lancers, the freshmen-sophomore honorary for those outstanding in scholarship and leadership. Selected as Junior Prom queen in the spring of 1965 was junior Sandra Sells, an English major from Indianapolis. Kee-Ko-Nut queen Janice Bursie was crowned at the Blue Key dance held in February. Prospects of a new dress, a favorite beau and a good band make these occasions to be remembered.

Queen Janice is a freshman from North Providence, Rhode Island.

Members of the queen's court were Judy Roscoe, Delta Zeta; Helen Silber, Independent Women; Queen Sandy of Delta Delta Delta; Connie Garrett, Unaffiliated Women; and Margie Asp of Zeta Tau Alpha. Paige Fulmer, Pi Beta Phi, was not present.

Sandra Sells, elected queen of the Junior Prom by a vote of all men present at the Prom, dances her coronation dance with Chuck Stumpf.

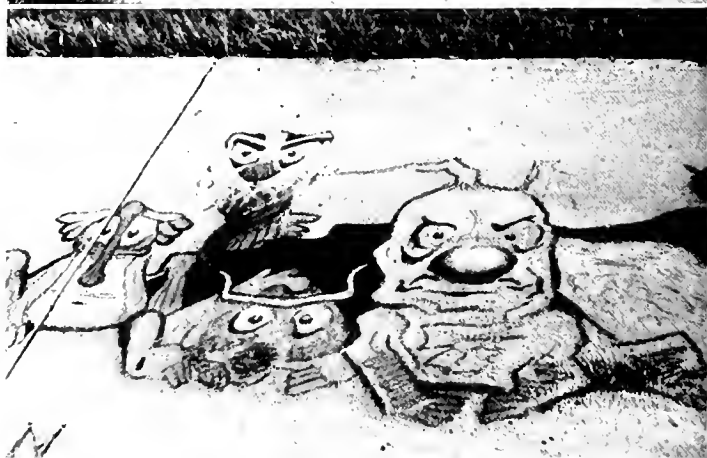

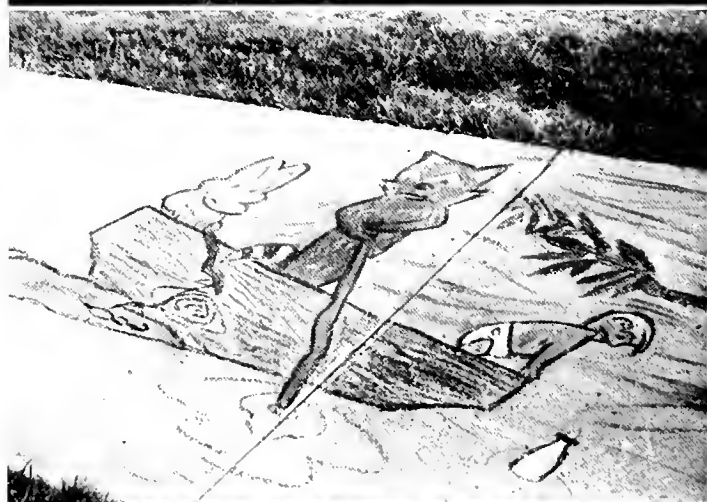

Betty Guttman and David Emerson joined other students in the Sidewalk Art Competition. Drawings were done with colorful chalk and enlivened campus walks until an unappreciative rain washed them away.

Festival of Arts Highlights Spring

The Festival of the Arts is a fairly new innovation which has won popular acceptance on the campus since it was first introduced to the college three years ago. The festival, held in the spring of the year features guest lecturers on the arts, slide lectures, art exhibits, choir and orchestral presentations, and a dramatic presentation. Last year an addition to the festival was the sidewalk art contest. Students used chalk and colorfully decorated the walks of the campus with original drawings. The Beaux Art's Ball, patterned after a French dance of the same name, featured abstract paint decorations and the wild beat of the Crests, a rock 'n roll band.

A warm night and a cool band caused students to evacuate dorms in favor of the Beaux Arts Ball, patterned after its namesake on the Left Bank of Paris.

The choir and Community Orchestra staged performances for the cultural benefit of the campus.

Mary Jane Maurer directs her Zeta Tau Alpha sisters in two songs sung for the non-competitive May Sing.

Don Harris escorts Linda Allen, representing the Unaffiliated Women for May Queen.

Pi Beta Phi candidate for May Sing is Mary Jane Phillips, escorted by Larry Trueblood.

Outstanding freshman and sophomore women were elected to Laurels. Laurel Wolf, member of Gold Quill, links Carolyn Wiltberger.

Junior women carry the traditional Daisy Chain, used for the entrance of the May Queen and her Court.

May Day, Graduation Climax School Year

Climaxing the year is the campus May Sing followed in June by the long-awaited graduation exercises. Mother's Day is an appropriate day for the campus sing which combines group singing, a queen crowning, and tapping for Laurels, the freshman-sophomore women's honorary. A colorful daisy chain carried by junior women leads the proud procession which includes May queen candidates, their escorts, and members of Gold Quill, the junior-senior women's honorary, who tap the members of Laurels. In the spring of 1965 Susan Maguire, Delta Delta Delta was selected May Queen.

Queen Susan Maguire was chosen by a vote of all campus men to reign over May Day festivities.

Noel Marquis, President of the Student Council, crowns Susan who represents Delta Delta Delta.

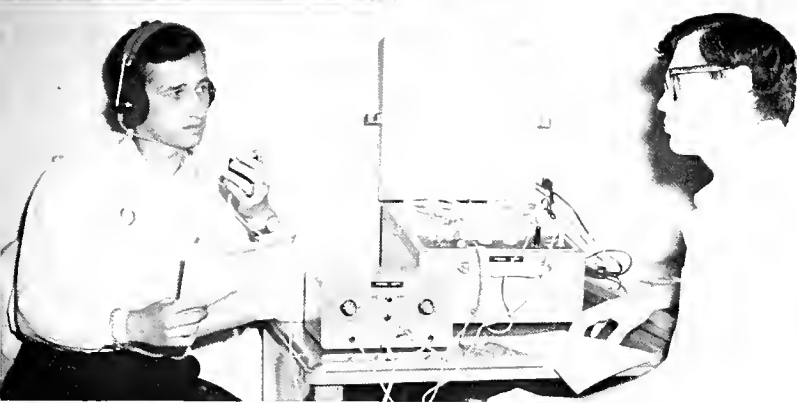

Most seniors receive their degrees in the spring, but 1966 graduate Mongkol Pisitkasem was an exception. In order to comply with Thailand military obligations, Pete was given his diploma in January so that he could return to Bangkok.

Academics

Campus, Community Served By President

Dr. Wesley Haines, chief administrator of the college, plays a vital and dynamic role in his position of leadership. Although Dr. Haines has been affiliated with the college just two short years he has established a place of prominence for himself in the community as well as in the life of the college. He and his lovely wife have opened their doors to students many times and have strengthened student-administration relationships by hosting a series of warmly-accepted class teas.

Telephone conversations help to fill the President's busy schedule.

Top: The President pauses to re-read some information before one of his many appointments.

Bottom: The dictaphone plays an important part in the life of a busy man.

Dr. Haines pauses in front of a composite of all past presidents of Franklin College.

Student activities, both academic and social, are special concerns in the offices of both deans.

Dr. Richard M. Park, Academic Dean, is an important member of the administrative team.

Dean of Students, Rev. C. Dwight Klinck uses his experience as past chaplain of the college to good advantage in his new position.

Students Chief Concern Of Collegiate Deans

The life of the student is the chief concern of both the dean of the college and the dean of students. Although the dean of students works directly with the students in academic and social counseling the dean of the college involves himself equally in student concern by concentrating on academic policy and by directing the curriculum. Academic problems involving student and faculty come to the attention of both these busy men who have made vast contributions to the effective administration of the college community.

Social Organizations

Twenty pledges wore the silver, gold, and blue ribbons of Delta Zeta chapter of Delta Delta Delta at the end of a successful rush week.

A queen trophy was added to the four won last year as freshman Janice Bursie became the sixth consecutive Tri Delta Kee-Ko-Nut queen. Connie McNally was selected from coeds across the state to reign as a princess in the "500" Festival activities.

Outstanding in campus leadership, the Tri Deltas claimed the outstanding Greek woman and three members of "Who's Who." Tri Deltas were officers of Gold Quill, Spanish Club and Panhellenic Council. The chapter was represented on the Almanack, Franklin, and Apogee staffs as well as the cheer-leading squad.

The men of Kappa Delta Rho were proud to have brother Meredith Price serve on the Student Council and brothers Paul Ford, Bob Kitchen, and Ron Cohen represent them on the Interfraternity Council. Kappa Deltas also had members in all language clubs, WFCI, Blue Key, Phi Alpha Theta and Chi Beta Phi. Jim Overmyer was sports editor of both the Almanack and the Franklin.

Highlights on the Kappa Delta Rho social calendar were the annual Sweetheart formal and the pledge dance with "Hawaiian A Go-Go" as the theme. The burning of the traditional privy before Homecoming was followed by an all-college dance at the Kappa Delt house.

During the Christmas holidays the Kappa Deltas and the women of Pi Beta Phi purchased clothing for needy children.

Delta Zetas were proud of Psi president Susan Wohlmuth as she reigned as the chosen sweetheart of Kappa Delta Rho fraternity. Social highlights on the Delta Zeta calendar included the annual dinner dance held in the Marrott Hotel of Indianapolis and the pledge dance which was accented by a western theme.

The chapter was active in Student Council, WRA, SEA, concert choir, and Laurels. Delta Zetas held executive positions in House Council and were well represented in the student government as class officers. Freshman Brenda Harmon represented her class as vice-president. Lyn Funke and Judy Conquest were officers of the junior class while senior, Judy Roscoe transacted business for her class in the capacity of secretary.

During the Christmas season the chapter aided the men of Sigma Alpha Epsilon in buying toys for needy children.

The men of Lambda Chi Alpha were proud to have their brothers represented in such activities as WECL, Phi Alpha Theta, and Chi Beta Phi.

Senior Don Harris held the top student governmental position on campus as president of the Student Council. John Seath was president of Phi Alpha Theta, the history honorary. Junior John Chiarotti was voted "most valuable" football player.

Dances were not Greek to the Chis as the pledge class presented a "Night in Athens" to the active chapter as the theme of the annual pledge dance. The chapter also held the formal dinner dance, the White Rose.

For the third year, the Lambda Chis sponsored a Christmas party for underprivileged children. Thirty excited children were thrilled to sit on Santa's knee and receive gaily-wrapped packages.

Fifteen new pledges, a prize-winning Homecoming float, and a Homecoming queen title sparked off a highly successful and rewarding year for Indiana Alpha chapter of Pi Beta Phi. Trophies looked especially apropos in a newly redecorated sorority suite which the Alumnae Club contributed to the organization.

Pi Phis were active in many campus activities. Pat Jones was president of the Panhellenic Council. Pat, along with sisters Paige Fulmer and Janet Schaftstall, was selected as one of the twelve outstanding seniors in "Who's Who In American Colleges and Universities." Five Pi Phis served on Student Council. Two were cheerleaders while others were active in the college theatre, and the newspaper and yearbook staffs.

At Thanksgiving the Pi Phis contributed food to prepare a basket for a needy family and at Christmas they worked in conjunction with the men of Kappa Delta Rho to buy new clothes for needy children.

Senior Jack Scherer studies to maintain his grade point that helped the Phi Deltas become first in scholarship for the Fall semester.

The men of Phi Delta Theta ranked first academically on the Franklin campus. Brawn as well as brains payed off as the Phi Deltas were also winners of the race for the all-sports trophy.

After a successful float victory at Homecoming with the women of Pi Beta Phi, the Phis progressed through the year by winning positions in "Who's Who," Blue Key, and Lancers. They were also represented in Alpha and Chi Beta Phi. Charles Bentz presided over the Student Court while brother Jim Newell served the college in the capacity of Student Council vice-president.

Senior Ken Young served his class as president while brother Bill Elett collected funds for the treasury. Sophomore Mike Byrd presided over his class.

ZTA

Beta Theta chapter members of Zeta Tau Alpha ranked first in scholarship for all collegiate women during the first semester of the 1965-66 academic year. Also highlighting the year were the pledge dance and the formal dinner dance.

Members of Zeta Tau Alpha were well represented in WRA, SEA, concert choir, chorale and WFCI. Gisela Lohner was the sorority's candidate for Homecoming queen. The group's representative at the annual Kee-Ko-Nut dance, sponsored by the junior-senior men's honorary Blue Key, was freshman Elaine Headley.

During the school year the Zetas enjoyed many spreads and alumnae dinners with the sixteen new pledges which were the result of an enjoyable and successful rush week.

Little news missed the Sigma Alpha Epsilon house as brother Ray Hamilton was editor of the Franklin, the college newspaper. Keaney Sloop was a member of Student Council and Steve Peck was a member of the Student Court. Freshman Chuck Hubay led his class as president, while junior Don Bozell was class treasurer.

For the second consecutive year Dave Powell was selected for the all-conference baseball team. The Sigs in a joint effort were also proud to capture the intramural football trophy.

The SAE pledges gave the chapter an enjoyable pledge dance with a "ski lodge" theme as well as the highest fraternity pledge class grade average on campus. Another social event ranking high on the SAE calendar was the Black and White formal held in April.

A philanthropic project in December was the selection and distribution of gifts to underprivileged children. The Delta Zetas helped in this joint community effort.

INDEPENDENT WOMEN

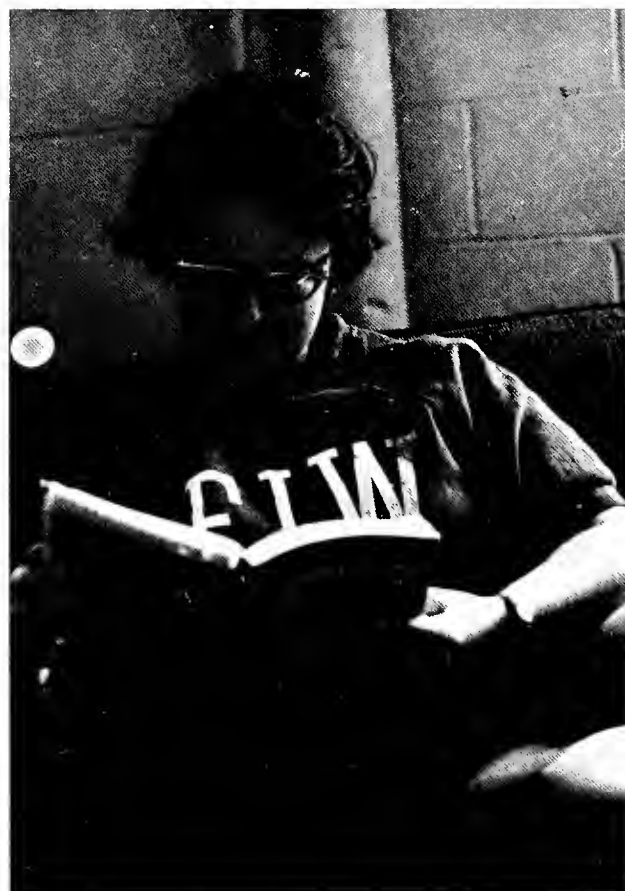

The Franklin Independent Women had members in SEA, German Club, and French Club. Helen Silber was an officer in Theta Sigma Phi, the women's journalism honorary, and Alpha Phi Gamma, the co-educational journalism honorary. Carolyn Wiltberger, president of the organization, was a member of Laurels, the freshman-sophomore women's honorary.

Sophomore Sharon Powell was the group's candidate for Homecoming queen while Penny Heeter was the freshman candidate for Kee-Ko-Nut queen. Carolyn Wiltberger represented her class as the junior queen candidate for the junior "Hop A Go-Go."

Social activities sponsored by the organization were a faculty tea, picnic and senior supper.

Greek Casuals

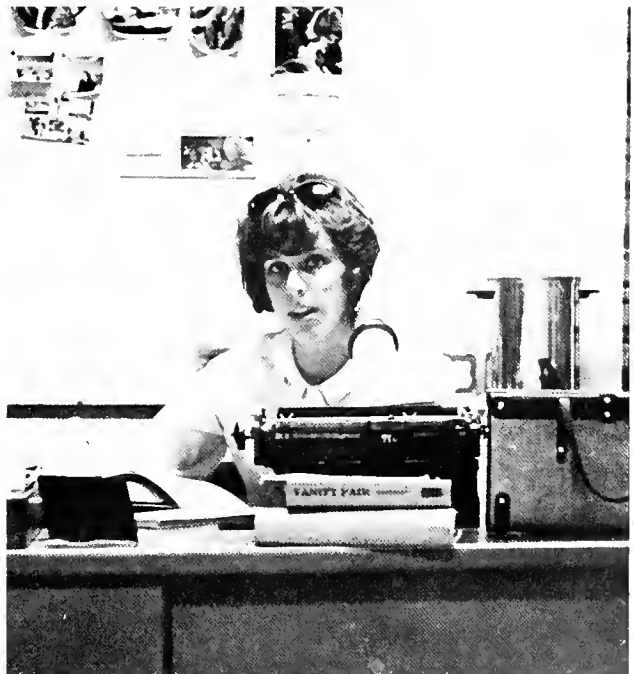

Pin serenades are a fraternity's way of congratulating a new pin-woman. The Phi Delt's serenade with their favorite songs.

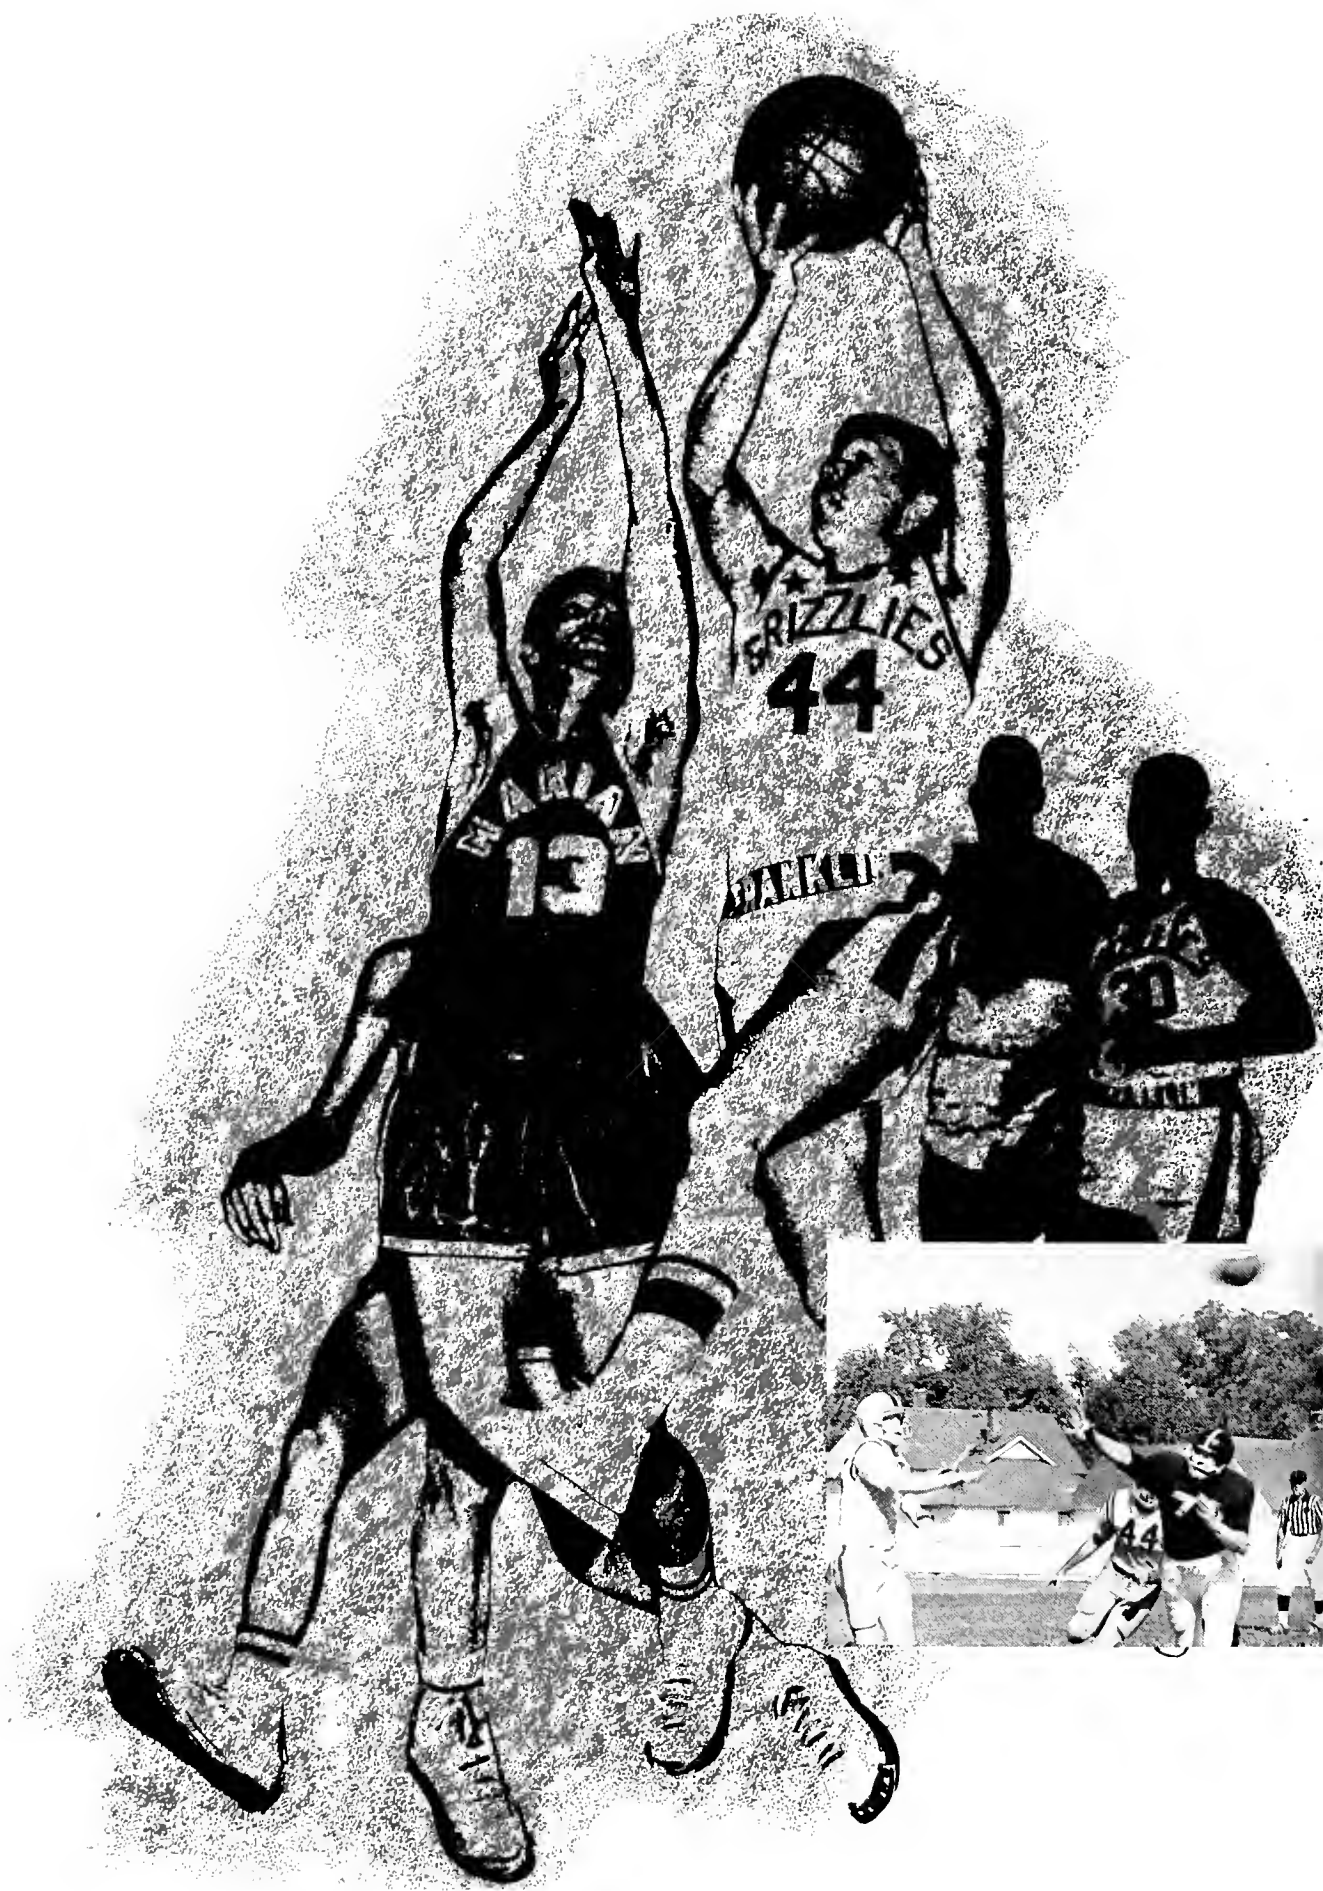

Each sorority maintains a suite in Elsey Hall. Sharon Roloson, Jane Singer, Candy Barnes, Sue Wolmuth and Sherrill Rowland stand before their new TV Stereo in the Delta Zeta rooms.

Debby Brooke, Delta Delta Delta, and Don Harris, Lambda Chi Alpha, were chosen Outstanding Greeks on campus.

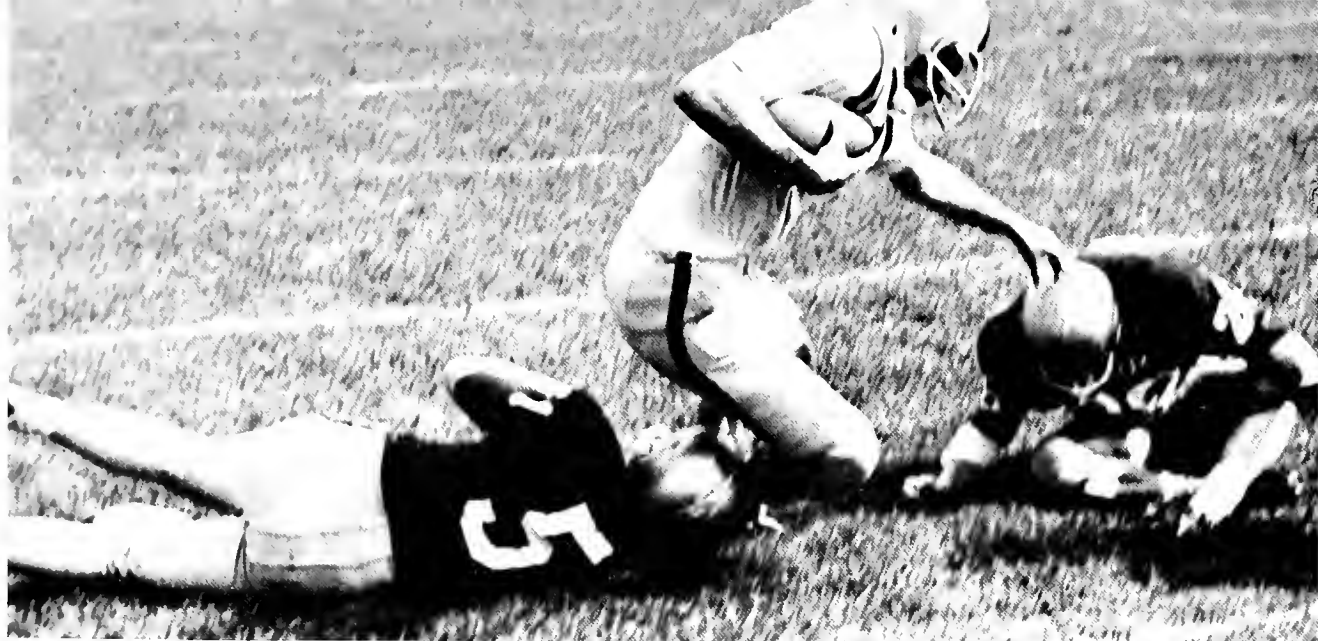

Gay Wiley takes time from her studies and works as assistant secretary of the IHSPA to be president of Delta Delta Delta.

Athletics

Top: Halfback Bob "Skip" Hempel almost eludes a pair of Earlham tacklers in the opening contest of the season.

Bottom: A power sweep nets good yardage for the Grizzlies' leading ground-gainer, halfback Tom Mengelt. Leading the charge are fullback Chuck Stumpf and Larry Goins, end, in the F. C. attack against Anderson.

for that's the stuff that life is made of . . .

The phrase above, found in Poor Richard's Almanack, refers to the value of time. Out of context it could also be used to refer to the values which make college a learning experience and a growing experience. As long as students find friendships vital, classwork stimulating, and activities challenging it will always continue to be so.
